EFFECTS OF CHLOROFORM AND MORPHINE.

Colonel Lafayette Beach, who was found insensible in Broadway near Spring-st., at 11:30 p. m., on Monday, with a bottle half full of chloroform on his person, was pronounced to be out of danger at St. Vincent's Hospital last night. Beach is an opium eater, and has been at the hospital twice within two years. He was a native of Nashville, and belonged to a respectable family there. Once he was wealthy, but recently he had been travelling for dry goods houses in this city.

William John Bell, a merchant of Norfolk, Va., died yesterday morning at the house of his mother, No. 205 Livingston-st., Brooklyn, from the effects of an overdose of morphine. He came to New-York on business two weeks ago, and during this visit, it is said, he drank rather freely. On Monday his condition was such that Dr. Charles Griswold was called in. Bell said that he needed sleep, and that he was in the habit of taking morphine to produce it. The doctor prescribed half a grain every three hours, but upon Bell's insisting that that quantity would do him no good, the dose was increased to one grain every three hours. The bottle containing the drug was left by his bediside, and the quantity taken by him far exceeded the prescription. His death occurred at 7 a. m.

After the aftray on Monday night, the officers went with Annie Price, who saw the deed, to Gardner's house to find him. FROM WEALTH TO WANT AND SUICIDE.

The body of a middle-aged finan, dressed fin a suit of blue, found of Governor's Island yesterday, was identified last night at the Morgue as that of Henry Koehler, of No. 290 Broadway. During the war he amassed a fortune as a saloon keeper and squandered it afterward in riotous living. For several months he had been a charge upon the bounty of his brother-in-law, Mr. Stroessel, of No. 78 Greene-st. His habits of intemperance provoked a quarrel, after which he left Mr. Stroessel's house, and wrote an indignant letter protesting against the harsh language used toward him. This letter was found in his pocket yesterday. Koehler went to Mr. Stroessel's house once more on May 2, but found no one at home. He was not seen after that until his body was found in the bay. It is supposed that, being destitute, he drowned himself. FROM WEALTH TO WANT AND SUICIDE.

A DEADLOCK IN THE CAP TRADE. A DEADLOCK IN THE CAP TRADE.

The 1,000 cap makers now on strike in this city, who were informed by their associated employers on Monday that as long as they belonged to a Union the employers would not treat with them, yesterday replied that in future they would deal only with individual manufacturers, and declared that they would stand or fall with their Union and its rules. They have ordered a general strike, and established headquarters at No. 10s Allen-st. The Amalgamated Trade and Labor Union has espoused their cause, and other labor organizations have promised aid. There is still considerable agitation among the carpenters, painters, eigarmakers, tinsmiths and roofers in regard to their wages. Some of the furniture makers are still demanding a reduction in the hours of work.

THE CONSPIRACY AGAINST A CITY.

TRIAL OF A BANK TREASURER FOR ALLEGED COMPLICITY IN IT.

The trial of David J. Mecker, recently indicted with Messrs. Leggett and Leeds for alleged conspiracy to defrand the City of Elizabeth, was begun yesterday in the Union County Court House at Elizabeth before Judge Van Sycle. The defendant was secretary and treasurer of the Mechanics' Saving Institution, of which Mr. Leggett was president. In the indictment he is charged with having been a party to the purebase of six $1,000 city bonds for $4,909 31, and the sale of them to Mr. Leggett, Controller of the city, for the city at their par value and accrued interest—$6,-12427. Last March, Messrs. Leggett and Leeds were found guilty under the indictment and sentenced to four years' imprisonment. The prosecution is conducted by Prosecuting-Attorney J. A. Fax, assisted by Attorney-General Stockton; United States District-Attorney Keasley and Messis. Alwood and Parrott are the counsel for the defence.

In opening the case Prosecutor Fay said that the next act of the conspiracy was the transaction of the six $1,000 bonds. These bonds were ourchased from the Germania Insurance Company. Deposit checks showed that one-third of the profit realized went to the credit of Leegett. The other third had not yet been accounted for. The Mechanics' Savings Institution had been used more as a medium for dealing in securities than as a savings bank. It was the aim of the prosecution to prove that the defendant received a part of the profit realized from the fraudulent transaction.

William R. Coleman identified the check drawn by Leggett in payment for the bonds.

Charles Russ, vice-president of the Germania Insurance Company, testfied that the bonds were sold to Leeds at 80 cents. Join Manyille, who was a clerk in the Controller's office at the time of the transaction, stated that the books showed that the money for the bonds was paid to the Mechanics' Savings Institution. CHARGES SENT TO THE GOVERNOR. SPECIFICATIONS OF THE JUDGE'S CONDUCT ON THE BENCH WHEN HE IS ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN INTOXICATED.

The Bar Association last evening accepted the report of its Judiciary Committee on the charges of drunkenness on the bench made ngainst Judge James P. Sinnett, of the Marine Court, at the last meeting. The report stated the various meetings that were held by the committee, the notices in regard to them sent to the accused Judge, his various excuses for not appearing, either personally or by counsel, the character of the testimony taken, and the final submission to Governor Cornell of the charges which the committee preferred against Judge Sinnott. The Governor sent back for the testimony taken, and his action in the matter was now awaited. INTOXICATED. The charges and specifications submitted to the now awaited.

The charges and specifications submitted to the Governor enumerated various days of 1879 and 1880 in which Judge Sinnott had attempted to discharge his official duty, when, it is alleged, he was in such a state of intoxication as to be totally unfit to do so. On January 12, 1880, while on the bench in this condition, he said to one of the connect present that if he were dissatisfied with his decision. "be might go to the General Term, and the nincompoops there would give him all the relief he desired." In the latter part of February he was trying the case of Pelew agt. Kair, which was an action brought by a sailor against a mate of a vessel for assault and battery. After some evidence had been taken, Judge Sinnott said that he had entered on the minutes that the defendant had called the plaintiff a d—d Irish—when the did not say so, he thought so. After more extraordinary conduct, Judge Sinnott exclaimed in a loud voice: "I am a Justice of the Marine Court I want you to understand, and I don't allow any profanity in my presence by any one. I consider this entire case a d—d frand"; although no one excepting the Judge had used any profanity. On another occasion, when a bond was brought to him for his approval he heid it upside down and insisted on signing it in that way. He gave as his reason that if he signed it right-side up he would be taken for a notary public.

Many other instances of like character were mentioned in the specifications. When they were read the lawyers were unable to preserve their gravity at the absurdity of some of them. The Executive Committee were empowered by unanimous vote to take necessary steps for prosecuting the charges if the Governor should entertain them.

TESTING THE SINCERITY OF COUNSEL.

Surrogate Calvin in a novel and clever way yesterday put a stop, for the time, at least, to the floo of lawyers' talk which has consumed so much time to of lawyers' talk which has consumed so much time in the Lesite will case. During an argument ex-Jidge Fullerion, counsel for Mrs. Lesite, repeated what he has so often insisted upon before, that the contestants' testimony previously addreed aid not in the slightest degree even tend to show either Mr. Lesite's unsoundness of mind or Mrs. Lesite's undue influence over him. Upon the first point the only testimony was that Mr. Lesite had sometimes made his lusiness plane upon one day directly contrary to what he had announced them the day hefore. Upon the second point the contestants' counsel seemed to be laboring under the impression that all strong influence was undue, even where it sprang from a man's great love for his wife. The only question was whether the will offered was the will of Frank Lesite or that of Mrs. Lesite.

Mr. Curtis, for the contestants, said that they considered that the evidence already put in clearly established both Mr. Lesdie's insanity and Mrs. Lesdie's undue influence over him, compelling him to make the will in her
